Customer Reference Guide to LIRR Post-Sandy AM/PM Peak Canceled/Diverted Train Plan

Please use this brochure in conjunction with the LIRR's November 12-December 16, 2012 Branch Timetables

This brochure provides an update to rush-hour LIRR trains that continue to be canceled/diverted due to the effects of Hurricane Sandy. During the storm, Amtrak's East River Tunnels, which connect Penn Station to Queens and points east, flooded. While all the tunnels have re-opened, two of them had extensive water damage. As a result, we are using a temporary signal sequencing system that has reduced the number of trains-per-hour that can move through them. Components of the original signal system are being repaired and will be re-installed as soon as possible.

Due to the reduced tunnel capacity, we developed a canceled and diverted train plan. It will likely be in effect for the remainder of the year. On the Long Beach Branch, we have restored limited weekday diesel service between Long Beach and Lynbrook, where customers can connect to electric trains. Bus service remains in effect on weekends and holidays.

Until full service resumes, customers may continue to encounter crowded trains and longer wait times. Customers are advised to stagger work hours as much as possible and travel in off-peak hours. This will help to reduce crowding in the peak periods. We appreciate your patience as our recovery efforts progress.

For More Information: Customers should monitor news reports, the MTA website, www.mta.info, and sign up for free E-Alerts at www.mymtaalerts.com for updates on LIRR service. Customers can also call the LIRR's Travel Information Center at 511.
